MARKET CONTEXT

Libya holds Africa's largest proven oil reserves. After 15 years of instability, the country is reopening to international investment at an accelerating pace:

- Jan 2026: ConocoPhillips/TotalEnergies signed $20B Waha fields development deal
- Feb 2026: NOC completed first licensing round in 17 years -- Chevron, Eni, Repsol, QatarEnergy, TotalEnergies, and TPAO awarded blocks (5 of 22, despite 44 applicants)
- 40+ discovered fields remain undeveloped, including 7 high-potential discoveries identified pre-conflict by our technical team
- Second licensing round in preparation

The gap between interest and commitment reveals a critical truth: relationships and local alignment determine success. Companies with on-ground intelligence secured positions. Those without sat out. The window remains open -- but the majors are already moving.

WHAT WE OFFER

- Direct Ministry Access: Active consultant to the Libyan Ministry of Petroleum on gas projects and field development. Relationships built over 30 years.
- Verified Opportunities: 40+ undeveloped fields with on-ground technical intelligence. Every asset verified through field-level due diligence before any introduction is made.
- Risk Mitigation: Counterparty screening, NCNDA-protected introductions, and ongoing advisory through negotiation and closing.
- Facilitation Model: We do not seek equity or operatorship. We introduce verified parties and support the process through completion.
